

Syngenta Crop Protection achieves cost reductions of up to 46% with specialist patent translation service

Syngenta provides crop protection products to farmers around the world.

Solution elements

RWS patent translation

RWS foreign filing

The challenge

Syngenta invests significantly in research and development, designing, improving and adapting their products to meet the ever-evolving needs of their users.

Syngenta therefore required ongoing support to translate and file their diverse range of patents. They sought an IP translation and filing partner who could deliver an efficient, flexible, cost-effective service.

The solution

The RWS in-house translation team is equipped with specialist patent knowledge, as well as expertise in relevant fields such as agriculture and plant protection. This makes RWS ideally placed to translate Syngenta's portfolio of complex and highly specialized patent documents.

In addition to translation, RWS offers a full suite of specialist IP services. As a result, RWS is also able to support Syngenta with patent filing and renewals. What's more, the Syngenta team is now exploring the possibility of conducting patent searches via the RWS world-leading, ISO-accredited IP research service.

RWS has provided the client with a dedicated account manager, who meets regularly with Syngenta to exchange feedback, report on account developments and deliver on pre-agreed KPIs.

Key benefits for Syngenta

- Up to 46% reduction in translation costs
